By accepting this agreement, the Customer understands the below fully and agrees to the terms. There is one user per CD-ROM. A user is defined as an individual who has access to the Petroleum Supply Europe CD via one individual computer workstation. OPIS reserves the right to periodically use technology to monitor the flow of its copyrighted material to insure the integrity of its copyright, which is protected under federal law. Limits: The Customer agrees not to extract and distribute the Petroleum Supply Europe database or any part of via email or through any machine-readable form. Further, the Customer agrees not to transfer or sell any part of this database to third parties. Exceptions to these conditions may be made by OPIS upon written request from the Customer and are subject to surcharges. Violation of these limits will result in a charge per violation equal to the annual charge for the service or $10,000, whichever is greater, plus reimbursement of OPIS' legal fees.

All rights reserved. No portion of this CD may be reproduced in any form or by any means in whole or in part without the written consent of the publisher. Reproduction for use in electronic databases or for rental of mailing names is also prohibited. Information contained in this directory has been carefully edited to provide dependable data. OPIS/STALSBY, however, does not guarantee the accuracy of the listings and assumes no responsibility for listings included or omitted. Inclusion should not be interpreted as an endorsement or recommendation.

The OPIS/STALSBY Directory Group makes every effort to update each publication with the most recent information. However, the timing of such things as mergers, acquisitions, and layoffs doesn't always coincide with our publication dates.

Under these circumstances, the appropriate information will be included in the next available edition.
